6:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Lower Level Community Room

We all have an important story to tell. We also have family stories, and ancestral stories that have been passed down to us by our parents and grandparents. These stories are so valuable, not just to pass to our children, but to express them for our own fulfillment. But how do you write them?

Helena Clare Pittman presents simple, alternate ways to write, based on many years of teaching memoir writing. In the course of these two workshops, writers will produce six pieces of writing, and explore possible themes to tie them together. Helena will share her own work, and read the work of other authors, to explore the structure and formats of memoir writing.
